

I like to use Pinterest to gather ideas and create a mood board on Miro to visualize it all together. Using sticky notes on Miro, I can then specify which parts of the mood board would work with the brand and its message (Journey to Self Growth).

At the moment, I am in the ideation phase and am inspired to wireframe with these bold colors and rounded corner type of webpage to display my research.

These greens would work well with giving the idea of nature and growth. The orange is so refreshing.

